

Martin Montenovo, M.D., is a board certified surgeon at Vanderbilt University and Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt. He is Associate Professor of Surgery and Transplantation.

Dr. Montenovo special expertise is in adult and pediatric cadaveric and living donor liver transplantation as well as hepatobiliary surgery. He performed the first adult-to-adult liver living donor transplant in the Northwest of United States while working at the University of Washington.

Dr. Montenovo earned his M.D. from the University of Rosario in Argentina. He is board certified by the American Board of Surgery and the American Society of Transplant Surgeons.